

Inova neighbor construction update: Sewer line improvement project begins
Friday, January 23, 2026

Hello neighbors,

I hope everyone is well prepared for the impending winter weather this weekend.

As you all know by now, our contractors began work on the sewer line improvement project earlier this week. They have been clearing trees and preparing the construction area all week trying to get ahead of the snow. I walked the site and your neighborhood earlier this week to drop new fliers and speak directly with some of you.

Last week, in advance of work starting, our project team and arborist walked the entire corridor with Fairfax County's site plan reviewer from Land Development Services, a county arborist from Urban and Community Forestry, and the Fairfax County Park Authority to confirm the limits of clearing and to identify specific trees for removal. We also discussed invasive species management and removal.

For your convenience I am sharing a link to our project web page, which has the presentation we shared with the community last summer. The slides show the areas of clearing and provide examples of the types of trees and understory shrubs that will be replanted once the project is complete. Project page:

With our start date slightly delayed since we last spoke, the project timeline will now push into the fall of this year.

We greatly appreciate your patience with the noisy work this week. I am in daily contact with the project team, so if you have any questions or concerns, please reach out to me via email or my phone is listed below. Please also forward this to your neighbors and HOA contacts who may not already be on my list and ask them to contact me so I can add them to our project outreach.

I will be back in touch with regular update as work continues on this important utility improvement project. Thank you again for your understanding and collaboration.

I hope you all stay warm and safe this weekend.

Regards,

Dominic
